Special speaker for the worship service, Omega Phi Psi brother:

Kent B. Amos

A graduate of Delaware State University, honored by his fraternity as a "National Citizen of the Year," Mr. Amos is a former executive for Xerox Corporation. Drawing on his corporate experiences, his work in urban neighborhoods, and his personal mentoring of dozens of children in his own home, he started the Dorothy I. Height Community Academy Public Charter School in 1998. Viewing education as a critical element in helping children realize their potential, but convinced that a new educational paradigm was needed, he opened the charter school to support his convictions. The school now has 1,800 students in grades pre-school through 8th on five campuses.
